Contribution ID: 422   Type: not specified

Rethinking Android's Priority Inheritance

The Binder driver is a lightweight IPC that serves as the communication backbone between processes in Android. It implements a very peculiar Priority Inheritance model that has been rejected upstream. This presentation re-examines this design and presents a few upstream-friendly alternatives to the current model.

Primary author: LLAMAS, Carlos

Presenter: LLAMAS, Carlos

Session Classification: Scheduler and Real-Time MC

Track Classification: Scheduler and Real-Time MC